

How Does A Condominium Association Adopt A Special Assessment?

There is a hierarchy of authority between the association's governing documents and the Illinois Condominium Property Act ("Act"). Pursuant to Section 2.1 of the Act, in any situation where the governing documents and the Act conflict (for instance, where the governing documents limit the Board's ability to pass special assessments or make certain expenditures), the Act will control and trump any inconsistent provision within the governing documents.

Pursuant to Section 18(a)(8) of the Act, unless a special assessment is for an addition or alteration to the common elements or to association-owned property not included in the adopted annual budget, which requires 2/3 unit owner approval, a condominium a board of directors – without unit owner approval – may adopt a special assessment. However, in the event the special assessment adopted by the board, without unit owner approval, exceeds 115% of the sum of all regular or special assessments from the preceding year, the unit owners may commence a series of procedures to reject a special assessment.

Generally, the board votes during open session of a properly called board meeting to adopt a special assessment, after which point the unit owners have the option of initiating time-sensitive procedures to attempt to reject the special assessment via following steps:

1. Twenty percent (20%) of the unit owners (by unit percentage as stated in the Association's governing documents) must sign a petition that is submitted to the board to reject the special assessment within fourteen (14) days of the date the board adopts the special assessment;
2. Provided the requisite twenty percent (20%) of unit owners have properly petitioned the board, the board must call a meeting of the unit owners within thirty (30) days of the date of delivery of the petition; and
3. Unless a majority of the total votes of the unit owners are cast at the meeting to reject the special assessments, the special assessment is ratified.

This publication is provided as a public service by the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation and is intended for the informational use and convenience of interested persons; it should not be considered a substitute for the advice of legal counsel. Although the information is considered to be reliable as of the time of its publication, no warranty, expressed or implied, is made regarding the accuracy, completeness, or legality of any information, either isolated or in the aggregate. The information is provided "as is". Changes may be periodically made to the information contained in this publication. The content on this website is not intended to constitute legal advice. Therefore, if you need legal advice, we encourage you to consult an attorney of your choice.